

MUHAMMAD HUSNAIN HAIDER

International Relations Fellow

Location	Islamabad, Pakistan
Areas of Focus	Public International Law International Humanitarian Law International Human Rights Law Diplomatic Law
Languages	Persian Tajik English Urdu

Short Bio

Muhammad Husnain Haider is a researcher and policy analyst specializing in Middle Eastern geopolitics and strategic affairs. He is pursuing a degree in Peace and Conflict Studies at the National Defence University in Islamabad and serves as an International Relations Fellow at the Consortium.

Husnain has contributed to policy development and international dialogue through his work with the Islamabad Policy Research Institute and Pakistan's Ministry of Foreign Affairs. His research focuses on political transitions, security architectures, and diplomatic processes in the Middle East, with particular emphasis on Gulf politics and shifting regional power dynamics. His work bridges academic analysis and policy insight, with the goal of informing international engagement and advancing strategic understanding of complex geopolitical challenges.

At the Consortium, Husnain contributes to the development of strategic research and advisory initiatives related to international law, multilateral diplomacy, and institutional engagement. His work supports projects involving States, international organizations, and academic partners, with a focus on the intersection of law, foreign policy, and global governance.