Short Bio

Eileen Maltés is a Legal Advisor at IntLaw Consortium. She graduated with honors from Universidad Argentina de la Empresa (UADE) and is an attorney admitted to practice in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her professional and academic interests include international dispute resolution and the interaction between public and private legal systems.

At IntLaw, Eileen supports the development of legal projects and cooperation with States, international organizations, and academic institutions. Her work includes comparative legal research, stakeholder mapping, and assistance to advisory processes on regulatory matters.

In particular, among other initiatives, Eileen has contributed to international human rights litigation proceedings through in-depth legal research and case analysis and has examined procedural norms and institutional practices across jurisdictions through comparative studies of regional and international arbitration frameworks. Eileen is, additionally, part of IntLaw's Greatest Hits & Hidden Gems of International Law flagship project, where she contributes to identify and contextualize foundational legal instruments that continue to shape international legal practice.
